

AIMING FOR HEALTHIER KIDS

States increasingly are turning to legislation to reduce the weight of the population, especially that of children. The most common tactic is to enact laws regulating school food and physical activity. Here is a breakdown, including the District of Columbia, of states that have passed legislation on these topics from 2003 to 2007.

-  No recent action
-  Legislation addressing school nutrition
-  Legislation addressing physical activity
-  Action addressing both physical activity and school nutrition

SOURCE: "2007 STATE LEGISLATION REPORT," AMERICAN ACADEMY OF PEDIATRICS, JANUARY
PUBLISHED IN THE MARCH 24/31, 2008 ISSUE OF AMERICAN MEDICAL NEWS. WWW.AMEDNEWS.COM